Family Update

From Andy Warren

It has been a busy couple of days here so thought I should let folk know what is happening now.

I spoke to 2 of the consultants at SGH yesterday and they have decided to continue now with my immunology treatment but also, alongside that, to give me a dose of radiotherapy - 1 session on 5 consecutive days.

They have also changed my blood thinning tablets to a daily injection. This is to try and disperse the blood clot that was flirting with my heart. So Jan stabs me every evening now and tells me it is for my own good. (I do get a wine gum after if I'm good and don't make a fuss!!).

Immunotherapy starts again on Monday 8th and the radiotherapy will be fitted into the timetable when there is a week free.

Will let you know via the prayer chain.
